

Dated back: 30 May 2014

To

My 13 year old, most innocent self

Dear me,

I know that you are really excited to know what is written here. But if I reveal what is in store for you.... you wouldn't enjoy it as much as me.

I'm here just to hand some edifications of things you'll probably do now. Don't be nervous. You're funny, you don't realize that now but trust me that's one of your best qualities. We should be glad that things didn't turn out bad for us, I know it doesn't make that much sense to you now but it will, have patience.

Things were never so boring, friends and novels never left us. I sometimes feel like you should've learnt guitar, been in a relationship and explored the extrovert in you.

You could be wondering why I referred to you as my most innocent self, it's not that I mean that you'll lose it later..... But you'll come to know all about that(3 letter word which you think is forbidden and I think is common) just in your Biology textbook!!! I won't spoil it anymore.

Everything will be fine and just don't panic when life's hard on you. I am actually very proud of you because you've become this mature and have this much clarity upon life.

I will end this, without spoiling anymore surprises that you will get ahead in life, on a funny note, please do some physical exercise and play some outdoor games too and maintain a proper diet. As a foodie, I know it's tough to give up on that last Rasgulla for your sister, but it's okay....

Take Care and Stay Strong.

From,

Yours lovingly

Future self

Sidhardha Grandhi

(Presently 18 years old)